Team

It has been a tough few weeks for all of us at Morris, trying to live our lives personally and professionally through the ever-changing news of the Virus outbreak, quarantines, stay at home, social distancing, don't meet in groups larger than 250 then 100 then 50 then 10 ... feels like a boa constrictor around our necks. At least it does for me. Then make everyone that can work from home do so. Are we properly connected, new rules for the house, kids running around and the pets all vying for our attention as we sit on our video calls. CRAZY!

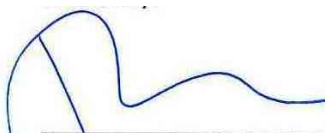

I wanted to thank you all for constantly adjusting to the new normal every week, and hopefully it doesn't last too long, and we can all get back to the lives we had before COVID-19. As always at Morris our commitment is first to your health and safety and second to the welfare of your families. At Morris we exist to build buildings, and although that has not been easy to do lately my hat is off to you for continuing to serve our clients with the quality construction services you have always provided.

On a positive note, I feel our project teams and executive staff are becoming more tightly connected than ever before and my hope is that this connectedness will continue long after CV 19 is gone. Let's keep it going together. We can succeed through any adversaries. Keep getting up everyday to rise to the challenges in front of us and talk it out when things get frustrating. We are all in this together ... and we'll all get through it together.

We will continue to provide the support you need to perform your responsibilities, whether it is in the field, the office or from your dining room tables. Let's work together to flatten the curve so we can all defeat the virus and get back to a normal life. We can do this ... together!

Building Better Together ... Stronger Together ... Just Keep Living!

Sincerely,

Chris Morris
